Course Description

This course examines the emergence and development of sexual diversity politics since the 1960s, in North America and around the world. It seeks to provide students with the theoretical and empirical background needed to understand how and when gays, lesbians, bisexuals, and the transgendered have politicized their sexual identities. Moreover, the course will explore the impact LGBT movements have had on the visibility and acceptance of sexual diversity, and on public policy issues. It will do so by examining the relationship between those movements and State institutions as well as other actors in the public sphere. Issues related to the intersectionality of class, gender and race/ethnicity will inform the exploration of these topics.

Part I of the course focuses on the development of sexual diversity politics, with a greater focus on Canada and the United States. It provides an exploration of successive cycles of mobilization, from the rise of gay and lesbian liberation, to the onset of the AIDS crisis, the emergence of queer politics and the growing presence of the LGBT movement in mainstream politics. This part also explores the increasing internal diversity of the movement and the development of a conservative counter-movement.

In Part II, we will explore the stakes and actors involved in, as well as the impact of the LGBT movement on different arenas and issues. More specifically, the course will explore questions related to the fight for the recognition of same-sex relationships, and some issues around schooling.

Part III will broaden the scope of the course, embarking on a discussion of the politics of sexual diversity—along the lines already explored in the two previous parts—in other parts of the world, taking a closer look at the development of LGBT politics in parts of Latin America, Sub-Saharan Africa, and the Middle East.

Course format and requirements

In addition to attending one two-hour lecture per week, participating actively in discussions in class, and keeping up with the required course readings, students are expected to fulfill the following requirements:

1. Opinion piece (1,500-1,750 words) – 25% – Due Friday, October 14
2. Research essay (2,500-3,000 words) – 35% – Due Friday, November 25 (proposal due Friday, October 7)
3. Final exam – 30% – Date to be determined
4. Class attendance and participation – 10%

Important dates:

October 7 – Research essay proposal due

October 14 – Opinion piece due

November 7 – Last day to drop courses with F section codes

November 25 – Research essay due

Students are expected to keep informed about current events and developments regarding sexual diversity politics by reading newspaper and magazine articles, as well as consulting websites devoted to the region. These include:

www.thestar.com

www.nationalpost.com

www.nytimes.com

www.xtra.ca

www.advocate.com

www.curvemag.com

paper-bird.net

Contacting your instructor

If you have a question about the course, please make use of the instructor's office hours posted on the first page of the syllabus. As for e-mail, course-related queries should include the course number (JPU 315) on the subject line and the student's full name in the message. Please refrain from sending attachments with your messages. Allow 2-3 business days for the instructor to respond to your message before contacting him again.

Course website

You can access the course website by logging into the University of Toronto's Portal (portal.utoronto.ca). Once you are logged in, if you are registered in the course, you should see JPU 315 listed under "My courses." Simply click on that link to access the course website.

This website plays a central role in the functioning of the course, and you are therefore strongly advised to visit it frequently. Important administrative and other announcements will be posted on it regularly, and it will also feature links to documents and readings required for the course.

Guidelines for assignments

Opinion piece (1,500-1,750 words) – due Friday, October 14

Write an opinion piece on what you feel Pride Parades should be about. Using the Black Lives Matter protest at the Toronto Pride Parade in 2016 as a launching pad and as the main focus of discussion, write a short essay explaining what should be the function of Pride Parades in the struggle for the rights of sexual minorities and the acceptance of sexual diversity. While the discussion will be rooted in the local experience of Toronto, you should also try to build a broader, more general argument. Remember to engage with the history of Pride in Toronto when writing your text. This opinion piece should be based on your own thinking about these issues, but should be backed up by research. You are therefore expected to draw on a minimum of 3 academic sources (e.g., journal articles, chapters in edited volumes, or academic book-length studies) in developing your answer. Please note that those sources, or other non-academic ones you use, need not be all specific to the Toronto case.

Research essay (2,500-3,000 words) – due Friday, November 25

Your research essay should examine some aspect of the development of sexual diversity politics. For example, you may explore the factors that help explain the mobilization of sexual minorities, or analyze the impact of an LGBT movement (on attitudes, public policy, collective identity, etc.). Feel free to use course readings, discussions or topics as inspiration for your essay question. You should focus on the contemporary period (i.e., post-World War II), but the specific time frame for your research will depend on your chosen topic. The research essay may focus on a single country, or may engage in a comparison of two countries. If you are interested in writing on a topic that is close to the one outlined for the opinion piece (see above), please contact the instructor.

Your essay should have a minimum of 8 academic sources (e.g., journal articles, chapters in edited volumes, or academic book-length studies).

You are required to prepare a 500-word proposal (about two pages) for your essay outlining the focus of your paper (including the central question you are going to tackle), the case(s) that you have chosen, as well as a preliminary bibliography and hand it in to the instructor for approval by October 7. The proposal is extremely important, as it is crucial to help you design a research question that is manageable and is likely to produce a good essay. Failure to hand in a proposal by that date will entail a 5% penalty on your essay grade.

Extensions and make-up exam

Only valid and documented reasons (such as severe illness or death of a close relative) will be accepted for late submission of assignments or for requests to write a make-up test. Requests due to work overload (either university-related or extra-curricular) will NOT be accepted. Please be advised that computer problems (such as crashes, viruses, corrupted disks, etc.) will NOT be accepted as grounds for extensions. Make sure you back up your work in reliable media often and avoid leaving work to the last minute to prevent problems. Make sure you familiarize yourself with Turnitin if you have never used it prior to this course. Confusion and trouble using Turnitin will NOT be accepted as a valid reason for late submission of your assignment.

If you foresee problems with meeting the deadline AND you have documentation, please contact the instructor as soon as possible. Do not wait until the due date has passed to contact him.

If you have to miss the final exam for a valid and documented reason, contact your College Registrar's Office as soon as possible.

Class assignments – submission instructions, format, due dates, penalties and re-grading policy

All assignments are to be submitted electronically to Turnitin.com by 11:59 PM on their due date. No hard copies need to be submitted (for further instructions see below, under "Turnitin.com").

Graded assignments with comments will be sent back to students electronically via Blackboard's communication tool within 3 weeks of submission. Please be sure that your University of Toronto e-mail account is active, not full and that only you can access it, since your graded work will be sent to that address.

Assignments must be sent in Word (.doc or .docx) or Rich Text (.rtf) format.

Students are strongly advised to keep all rough and draft work and copies of their essays and assignments before submitting them. These should be kept until the marked assignments have been returned. Once you receive your graded assignment, make sure to keep it until all final grades have been submitted and posted.

Pay close attention to the word limit stated on the assignment guidelines. They are inclusive of notes and bibliography. Please note you will be penalized for going over the word limit in the written assignments.

You may use the referencing style of your preference (MLA, Chicago, APA, etc) as long as you are consistent and provide complete references. Please consult a style guide if you have doubts regarding how to properly include a reference in your assignment.

The late penalty for assignments handed in beyond their due dates is 3% per day, including weekends and holidays. For the purpose of assigning late penalties, it is the Turnitin submission date and time that counts. Unless you have provided appropriate documentation and the instructor has granted you an extension, NO LATE RESEARCH ESSAY PROPOSALS will be accepted.

If you would like to have an assignment re-graded, you must submit a written request (1-2 pages) clearly outlining the reasons why you feel the grade you received was not a correct assessment of your work. That request must be submitted within five (5) working days from the day the graded assignment was returned to you, and no later than the last day of classes (December 7, 2016). In that request, you must indicate the grade (number grade, not simply letter grade) you feel your essay deserves. There must be a significant difference between the grade you received and the grade you feel your essay deserves. You should note that, as a result of the re-grade request, your essay grade may remain the same, go up, or go down.

A note on plagiarism, academic integrity and writing

Please note that plagiarism is an extremely serious academic offence and will be dealt with accordingly. For further clarification and information on plagiarism and how to avoid it, please see the University of Toronto's policy at www.utoronto.ca/writing/plagsep.html.

Academic integrity is fundamental to learning and scholarship at the University of Toronto. Familiarize yourself with the University of Toronto's Code of Behaviour on Academic Matters (<http://www.governingcouncil.utoronto.ca/policies/behaveac.htm>). It is the rule book for academic behaviour at the U of T, and you are expected to know the rules. You should also consult www.artsci.utoronto.ca/osai/students for further information on academic integrity at the University of Toronto.

Students are strongly encouraged to explore the numerous resources available at the “Writing at the University of Toronto” website at www.utoronto.ca/writing.

Turnitin.com

Normally, students will be required to submit their course essays to Turnitin.com for a review of textual similarity and detection of possible plagiarism. In doing so, students will allow their essays to be included as source documents in the Turnitin.com reference database, where they will be used solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism. The terms that apply to the University’s use of the Turnitin.com service are described on the Turnitin.com website.

If, as a student, you object to using Turnitin.com, an alternative arrangement for the submission of your written assignment will be available. You will be required to: 1) meet the instructor for a brief interview about the research process prior to the assignment due date, 2) submit all your rough work and notes with your assignment, and 3) e-mail the assignment directly to the instructor.

Please follow the instructions on how to set up a Turnitin.com account, enroll in the course, and submit a paper in the “Turnitin.com guide for students” link (under “Assignments”) available on the course website.

Note that, since you will not be required to submit a hard copy of your assignment, for the purposes of calculating an eventual late penalty, it is the Turnitin.com submission date and time that counts.

Accessibility needs

The University of Toronto is committed to accessibility. If you require accommodations for a disability, or have any accessibility concerns about the course, the classroom or course materials, please contact Accessibility Services as soon as possible: disability.services@utoronto.ca or <http://studentlife.utoronto.ca/accessibility>

Religious accommodation

If you require accommodation regarding assignment deadlines or other course requirements due to religious observance, please note that you should make your request to the instructor within the first three weeks of class.

Course readings

The required course readings are available electronically on the University Portal (portal.utoronto.ca). For further instructions on accessing them, please consult the library page at <http://onereach.library.utoronto.ca/course-reserves>.
