Class Time: Tuesdays 1-3PM

Office Hour: Tuesday 3:15-4:30 or by appointment.

Land Acknowledgment: We wish to acknowledge this land on which the University of Toronto operates. For thousands of years, it has been the traditional land of the Huron-Wendat, the Seneca, and, most recently, the Mississaugas of the Credit River. Today, this meeting place is still the home to many Indigenous people from across Turtle Island and we are grateful to have the opportunity to work on this land.

1. Overview

This course explores salient issues in the study and practice of international development. It aims to deepen appreciation of major theoretical and substantive debates taking place in the political economy of development. It is organized in roughly two parts: overview of the evolution of major perspectives on the political economy of development and development practice in the post-WW2 era and examination of analysis and debate on some major issues in the field today.

2. Format

The seminar will be mainly driven by student participation and discussion. Emphasis during the seminar will be placed on critical interpretation of assigned readings through the active participation of students in classroom dialogue and debate. Useful participation will be informed by knowledge of the readings and a willingness to share insights and certainties as well as doubts.

The reading requirement for this course is moderate. You are expected to complete all the required readings prior to each session. All readings are available electronically either as links through the library's website or as PDFs. You can locate the electronic links and PDF files under library reading list on the left side of the course page in Quercus.

There will be no lectures. I will occasionally spend a few minutes introducing the main themes of weekly session. Each session will open with 2 or 3 students (depending on class size) providing succinct summaries of the required readings to lay the groundwork for discussion. These presentations will be for a maximum of 06 minutes for session with two presenters (.86 minutes.

~~each for session presenter) and maximum of 10 mins for session with 9 presenters (7 mins for each presenter) for session with three presenters.~~ The summaries will specify the key issues being addressed, the main argument(s) of the reading(s) and the supporting evidence and offer an opinion on the strengths and limitations of author(s)' analysis. Presentations will be assessed as part of the participation mark and are separate from the weekly reaction papers required of all. It is expected that you will discuss how to approach the presentation with co-presenter(s) before the session. GUIDELINES FOR EFFECTIVE PRESENTATION POSTED ON QUERCUS

This is not a research assignment (unless you want to make it that). I will provide a written evaluation. Please note that the instructor may cut you off if you exceed the maximum allowable duration as stated in the guidelines.

Presentations begin in Session 3/September 17.

Please be ready by September 6th to email me a list of three sessions, beginning with session 3, which you are willing to lead. The schedule of presentations will then be available at the Sept. 10th class.

3. Course policies and procedures

Emails: I will attempt to respond to all emails within 48 hours (excluding weekends and holidays).

Questions on course material cannot be adequately addressed via email. I will discuss course material or address substantial questions in class meetings, during office hours or by appointment.

Quercus, student email, and course information: This course will use Quercus to disseminate all course related information and assignments. Please ensure you have a valid U of T email. It is your responsibility to log on to Quercus regularly and obtain relevant information. To login, please go to: q.utoronto.ca

Submitting written assignments: All written assignments and responses have to be submitted through Quercus.

Rough drafts and electronic copies of papers: Students are strongly advised to keep rough/ draft work and electronic copies of their papers before handing it in. These should be kept until marked assignments have been returned to you and the grades posted on ROSI.

4. Course requirements

Attendance and Participation 20%
Steady but quiet attendance yields 40% of the total marks for this element. Active and informed participation yields higher grades. 10% of this component will be based on your presentation.

Weekly Reaction Papers: 10%
Weekly reaction papers of a maximum of one single-spaced page (about 300 words) summarizing the arguments in two of the required readings for Sessions 2-11. WRPs are to be posted on Quercus Course page by 6PM on the day before the relevant session. WRPs are intended to facilitate discussion in seminars. You can use them to ask for clarification of issues in the readings that you do not understand and to raise questions you think are important for the class to consider.

The first weekly response paper is due September 09 for Session 2 on September 10.)

The reactions papers will not be graded, but you will be penalized for failing to post them on time before the relevant session and if they are not clearly written, coherent, and grammatically correct. You are expected to read and reflect on the reaction papers of other seminar participants prior to class meetings. This will inform you of the reactions of other class members to the readings. WRP submitted after the deadline will not be accepted.

Thematic Position Paper (Due October 8) 20%
A 1000 maximum word (approximately 3-4 double-spaced pages) position paper on contending perspectives on a theme for sessions 2- 6 or later if you prefer. A list of themes will be provided or you can focus on one of the main issues for different sessions. You will use the relevant required readings (and additional sources if you wish) for this assignment. The emphasis is on concise, focused thought. You must state a clear position with respect to the perspectives and defend your position through a critical engagement with the literature: what are the main tenets of the contending perspectives, which of them do you side with, and why do you find the perspective you side with more persuasive. If you have an idea of the topic for your final essay, you can use this assignment as groundwork for the essay. SEE GUIDELINES POSTED ON QUERCUS

Analytical Paper (October 29) 15%
Treat this assignment as the first part of your final paper (see below). The analytical paper will be a maximum of 5 double-spaced pages. It will: (1) specify the issue you will write your paper on and why it is important; (2) present your main hypothesis or arguments; (3) sketch and briefly justify your intended conceptual/theoretical approach; (4) discuss the type(s) of evidence you will use to sustain your analysis; and (5) provide a sample bibliography of a minimum of seven items (articles in academic journals, books and/book chapters) you will use for the paper. Secure my approval of your essay topic before beginning work on this assignment.

Final Paper (November 26) 35%
Write a critical essay exploring an issue covered in the seminar. Feel free to use a case study or comparison of cases to sharpen your discussion. Either way, the paper will elaborate the conceptual and substantive issues laid out in the analytical paper that is due March 02. Therefore, be sure to get my approval of your essay topic before you start work on the analytical paper.

Maximum length: 15 double-spaced pages (approximately 3,500 words), exclusive of cover page, notes, and bibliography.

5. Note on Plagiarism

The University of Toronto treats cases of academic misconduct very seriously. All suspected cases of academic dishonesty will be investigated following the procedures outlined in the relevant Code. The consequences for academic misconduct can be severe, including a failure in the course and a notation on your transcript. If you have any questions about what is or is not permitted in this course, please do not hesitate to contact the course instructor. If you are having questions about appropriate research and citation methods, seek out additional information from me, or from other available campus resources like the U of T Writing Website. If you are experiencing personal challenges that are having an impact on your academic work, please speak to me or seek the advice of your college registrar.

For further clarification and information, please see the University of Toronto's policy on plagiarism at <http://www.writing.utoronto.ca/advice/using-sources/how-not-to-plagiarize>.

Ouriginal: "Normally, students will be required to submit their course essays via Ouriginal (integrated into Quercus) for a review of textual similarity and detection of possible plagiarism. In doing so, students will allow their essays to be included as source documents in the Ouriginal reference database, where they will be used solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism.

The use of Ouriginal is voluntary. If you object to using Ouriginal you must contact me well ahead of time (i.e. at least three weeks before your essay is due) to establish appropriate alternative arrangements for submission of your written assignments. This will involve devising alternative methods for verifying the originality of your work, likely including submitting rough work along with your essay and having a brief interview about the work with the instructor.

The terms that apply to the University's use of Ouriginal are described on the Centre for Teaching Support & Innovation web site."

6. Accessibility Needs

The University of Toronto is committed to accessibility. If you require accommodations or have any accessibility concerns, please visit <http://www.accessibility.utoronto.ca/> as soon as possible.

7. Late penalty:

Extensions: Extensions will only be granted in extenuating circumstances that could not be anticipated ahead of time.

Late penalty: Assignments handed in any time after the specified deadline will be treated as late. There will be a penalty of 2% per day late, including weekend. The cut off time for the determination of each late day is 11pm. The penalty will be strictly enforced.

8. Submission of written work

Written assignments must be submitted electronically in Word or pdf formats.

9. Readings for the Course

This syllabus identifies required readings for each week. Obviously, you must read the required readings for each week if we are to have a stimulating seminar. The required readings are available in electronic format through University of Toronto Libraries and can be accessed via library resources on the course page on Quercus.

A list of supplementary reading materials for weekly topics will be available on the course page on Quercus.

10. Other important matters

Code of Conduct: The University of Toronto expects all its members to behave responsibly and with courtesy and respect for others at all times. The University of Toronto is committed to equity, human rights and respect for diversity. All members of the learning environment in this course should strive to create an atmosphere of mutual respect where all members of our community can express themselves, engage with each other, and respect one another's differences. Students should make sure to read the University's Student Code of Conduct (<https://governingcouncil.utoronto.ca/secretariat/policies/codestudent-conduct-december-13-2019>) and the University's policy on the Appropriate Use of Information and Communication Technology (<https://www.provost.utoronto.ca/planning-policy/informationcommunication-technology-appropriate-use/>).

Accessibility: Students with diverse learning styles and needs are welcome in this course. If you have a disability/health consideration that may require accommodation, please contact Accessibility Services (studentlife.utoronto.ca/as); Phone: 416-978 8060.

Registrar Support: Students are encouraged to contact their registrar promptly if they experience unexpected challenges during the course that may require accommodations.

Health and Wellness: Students can access a wide range of programs and services to support their health and wellbeing. Many of these programs are listed at:

<https://studentlife.utoronto.ca/department/health-wellness/> uoft.me/myssp

Crisis support: If you feel distressed, please know that you are not alone and please reach out for help. For further resources, please see: <https://studentlife.utoronto.ca/task/support-when-you-feeldistressed/>
