COURSE OVERVIEW

POL2200Y covers the major approaches to explaining and understanding international relations and foreign policy. It is a course designed for doctoral students that focuses on the construction and evaluation of theory. It has three purposes: to provide a thorough grounding in the “great literatures” of international relations and their application to current debates; to develop students’ ability to assess these literatures critically; and to help students refine the theoretical foundations of their subsequent dissertations.

Required reading materials are available on reserve at the Robarts and Trinity College Libraries.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Performance in the course will be evaluated on the basis of the following requirements:

1. Seminar Participation: 25% of final grade (evaluated once per semester at 12.5% each)
Students are expected to participate actively in class discussions each week, having carefully considered and critically evaluated the materials on the reading list.
2. Response Papers: 75% of final grade (15% each)
* Students are required to write 6 response papers that engage with the course materials and address a question that is distributed one week in advance. All 6 papers must be completed, but we will count the best 5 out of 6.
* In preparing your papers, answer the question that you are asked and not some other question of your own design. Demonstrate your mastery of the relevant readings and make sure to incorporate your own ideas, thoughts, reactions, and analyses. No outside sources or references are required.
* Papers must be submitted at the beginning of class on their due dates on October 13, November 10, December 1, January 26, March 2, and March 30. Papers are to be no more than 8 pages of double-spaced text (about 2000 words) in length. Late papers will not be accepted without a physician’s note.

Students must fulfill all course requirements in order to satisfactorily complete the course.

COURSE RULES AND POLICIES

Extensions: No extensions will be granted on the response papers, unless students have acceptable reasons beyond their control that are adequately documented—for example, a medical emergency supported by an official U of T medical certificate. Students are expected to inform instructors of such mitigating circumstances as soon as possible. Appropriate documentation must be submitted no later than within one week of the missed course requirement. Assignments and exams from other courses scheduled for the same date, TA responsibilities, or other work commitments do not constitute acceptable reasons for extensions, so please plan accordingly.

Plagiarism: All sources used in the response papers must be properly cited. Failure to acknowledge sources constitutes plagiarism—a serious academic offense. To guard against plagiarism, students may be asked to submit their written work to Turnitin.com for textual similarity review, under terms set by the University of Toronto and as described on the Turnitin.com website.

Blackboard: Blackboard will be used to manage and coordinate the course. All students are required to have an active University of Toronto email for this purpose. Reading materials and important course announcements concerning dates and requirements will be posted electronically on blackboard. In light of the University's strong emphasis on preparedness for possible pandemic outbreaks, students will be expected to check their emails and log in to blackboard on a daily basis to have quick and easy access to information in the event of unexpected disruptions.

Double-sided printing: To conserve paper, please print your essays double-sided if you can. You can learn how at: printdoublesided.sa.utoronto.ca.

Thucydides, History of the Peloponnesian War, introduction, the debate in Sparta, the funeral oration of Pericles, the plague in Athens, the civil war in Corcyra, the Mytilenean debate, the Melian dialogue, and the rise and fall of the Sicilian expedition.

Two commonly used and good editions of this text are:

(1) Robert B. Strassler and Richard Crawley, eds., The Landmark Thucydides: A Comprehensive Guide to the Peloponnesian War (New York: Free Press, 1996). This edition includes useful maps and short introductions on various aspects of Ancient Greek life.

(2) Thucydides, The Peloponnesian War, trans. Rex Warner (Harmondsworth: Penguin, 1983). This edition has the advantage of being compact and widely quoted.

2-hour STL: DF229 .T6 W37 1972 TRIN

The most literal translation is Mansfield/Tarcov (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1996); however this uses language which is often awkward. The Penguin edition is also good and has the advantage of being widely used.

2-hour STL: JC143 .M16313 1996 TRIN

Jean-Jacques Rousseau, "Abstract of the Abbé de Saint Pierre's Project for Perpetual Peace," "Judgement on Saint Pierre's Project for Perpetual Peace," "The State of War," and "Fragments on War," all in Forsyth, Keens-Soper, and Savigear, eds. The Theory of International Relations (London: Allen & Unwin, 1970).
