COURSE DESCRIPTION

European integration is one of the most important political experiments in recent history. This course looks at the historical impetus for European integration and to the recent trends in this process, as well as its future prospects. It will examine the consequences of enlargement and deeper integration for the internal dynamics of the Union. However, the emphasis is on the impact that integration and the prospects of integration have on the potential member states and the countries bordering the Union.

The course provides a brief overview of the salient issues in the past enlargement rounds, furnishing the context for the study of current and future integration efforts. Readings will cover the recent rounds (2004 and 2007) of enlargement to the Central and East European countries, continuing with efforts related to South-Eastern Europe (the Balkans), as well as Turkey. Issues between the EU, Ukraine, Russia and the Caucasus will also be studied. Security issues, related to NATO integration and operations, will also be covered along with the emerging Common Foreign and Security Policy of the EU.

In addition to an introductory session, there are six distinct sections: (i) Central Europe plus Romania and Bulgaria, (ii) The Balkans, (iii) The former USSR - Russia, Ukraine and the Caucasus (iv) Turkey and the Mediterranean Area, (v) Immigration, Identities, NATO and CFSP, (vi) Contemporary Challenges which looks at the key challenges faced by the Union in 2011 - 2012.

GRADING SCHEME

There are four components to the grade for the course:

- 1) 1st term essay (800 - 1000 words) - 25% - Due 27 October 2010 – You will be expected to write an opinion piece on an issue of central importance for the EU in 2011. We will discuss the format in detail in class. Students are encouraged to familiarize themselves with this style of essay by regularly reading similar pieces in the New York Times or other leading newspapers.
- 2) In-class test - 20% – Last class end of First Term (December 1st). The test will be composed of a short answer “identify and explain” question section and one short essay.
- 3) 2nd term essay (2500 words) - 45% – This is a more classical research essay. It must be on topic discussed with me in advance. This can be done during office hours or via email. Due – 22 March 2012.
- 4) Regular attendance and participation – 10%.

The late penalty is 2% per day.

READINGS

Textbooks

Course Texts:

The weekly readings listed below are available through the U of T’s article database. Students are not expected to read every article, but this list should serve as guidance for your major research paper. I have marked any priority readings with an asterisk. Additional readings from contemporary media and think tanks will be posted weekly on the course’s Blackboard site.

As to texts, students should purchase one of the following books:

Michael J. Baun, A Wider Europe – The Process and Politics of European Union Enlargement. New York: Rowman and Littlefield, 2000.

or

Michelle Cini, Ed. European Union Politics. Second Edition. Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2007.

or

Neill Nugent, Ed. European Union Enlargement. New York: Palgrave, 2004.

As knowledge of the history of the region is critical, students are encouraged to read (although not necessarily buy) Tony Judt, Postwar – A History of Europe Since 1945. New York: Penguin, 2005. Chapters 1 and 2 along with 18 through 24 are highly recommended for students.

EU Official Site: <http://www.europa.eu.int>

European Union Studies Association: <http://www.eustudies.org/home.html>

Newspapers:

Students will also benefit from following the mainstream media in Europe. The best source for European issues is the Financial Times as well as the International Herald Tribune. An excellent and current on-line news source is for Europe BBC News. The Economist also has an excellent blog on EU affairs, Charlemagne's Notebook. For an economics and finance focus, read the Brussels Blog.
