MORAL REASON AND ECONOMIC HISTORY

Professor R.B. Day
229 Kaneff Centre
(905) 828-5203
email: richardb.day@utoronto.ca
Office Hours: Thursday 3-5 (or by appointment)
Course Website: www.richardbday.com

Prerequisite: POL 320Y

Prerequisites are strictly checked and enforced and must be completed before taking a course. By taking this course you acknowledge that you will be removed from the course at any time if you do not meet all requirements set by the Department of Political Science. Further information can be found in the 2019-2020 Courses Calendar which is available from the Office of the Registrar.

Course Description and Objectives:

Human beings have a past, present and future. This implies a need to make individual and collective judgments not only of what has been and what is, but also of what 'ought to be'. Since practical judgments involve issues of everyday life, we explore the relation between philosophy, economic circumstances and cultural expectations. Since philosophies and economic theories often make universal claims, we consider how such claims relate to particular cultures and particular stages of economic development. Our endeavour is to think about thinking. We look at alternative ways of interpreting economic history in order to provide context for the issues of our own day concerning what type of community we 'ought to' be living in.

The first term consists of lectures; the second term will include both lectures and seminars. Lectures in this course involve readings – not slides, videos, bullet points, etc. The topics on which seminar papers will be given are listed below. Two papers will be given on each seminar topic, and each seminar report and accompanying discussion will take one hour of class time. Seminar presentations are to be treated as preliminary findings for a more substantial research paper on the same topic that will be submitted at the end of the year.

Course Requirements and Grading for POL 478Y:

25% -- one book review (8-10 pages) due 27 November

25% -- one seminar presentation

25% -- 5 weekly reports (5-7 pages) on seminar topics

25% -- 1 essay (12-15 pages), due 1 April

Final Drop Date without Academic Penalty: February 17, 2020

Course Requirements and Grading for POL 2019Y:

25% -- one book review (12-15 pages) due 27 November

- 25% -- one seminar presentation
- 25% -- 5 weekly reports (5-7 pages) on seminar topics
- 25% -- 1 essay (approximately 20 pages), due 1 April

Seminar and Essay Topics (478 & 2019Y):

14a, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24.

Book Review (478 & 2019Y):

For the Book Review, POL 478 students will choose one of the following three books:

- 1) R.J. Sullivan, Introduction to Kant's Ethics
- 2) Shlomo Avineri, Hegel's Theory of the Modern State
- 3) Shlomo Avineri, Social and Political Thought of Karl Marx

During the first term, our principal concern will be to explore each of the above three thinkers in considerable detail. You may, of course, refer to other sources if you wish to criticize some inadequacy in the book that you review or if you wish to point out alternative interpretations.

POL 2019Y students may have already studied Kant, Hegel and Marx, in which case your book review may focus on some other title listed in the outline of weekly lecture and seminar topics. If you do choose to review a book other than the three listed above, you must first discuss your proposal with Professor Day. Note: Book reviews will be graded both for content and for grammar and style. Use your word-processing program to check spelling and grammar!

Book reviews and essays are to be submitted to Turnitin. Late Book Reviews and Essays will be subject to a penalty of 5 percent per day (including weekends) of the total marks for the assignment. Assignments submitted five calendar days beyond the due date will be assigned a grade of zero. Assignments handed in AFTER the work has been returned to the class cannot be marked for credit. Accommodations due to late registration into the course will NOT be approved.

Weekly Reports: The weekly reports must be submitted at the seminar meeting where the topic is discussed. The purpose of the weekly reports is to ensure that most students will have read and considered the issues that will be discussed in the seminar presentation. Your report should define what you consider to be the salient issues and conclusions that you would expect to see discussed in the seminar.

Plagiarism in any course work will be penalized severely. See the following notes on plagiarism and speak with Professor Day if you have any further questions. NOTE: it is an academic offence 'To submit work containing a purported statement of fact or reference to a source which has been concocted'. Freely translated, this means 'DON'T FAKE THE CITATIONS!'

A WARNING ABOUT PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an academic offence with a severe penalty.

It is essential that you understand what plagiarism is and that you do not commit it. In essence, it is the theft of the thoughts or words of others, without giving proper credit. You must put others' words in quotation marks and cite your source(s). You must give citations when using others' ideas, even if those ideas are paraphrased in your own words. Plagiarism is unacceptable in a university. What the university calls "plagiarism", non-university institutions might call "fraud".

The University of Toronto provides a process that faculty members must initiate when they suspect a case of plagiarism. In the Department of Political Science, suspected evidence of plagiarism must be reported to the Chair; in most cases, the Chair passes the case on to the Dean.

A faculty member may not mark an assignment or assess a penalty if he or she finds evidence of plagiarism – the matter must be reported. Penalties are assigned by the Chair, by the Dean or by the University of Toronto Tribunal.

The following are some examples of plagiarism:

1. Submitting as your own an assignment written by someone else.
2. Quoting an author without indicating the source of the words.
3. Using words, sentences, or paragraphs written by someone else and failing to place quotation marks around the material and reference the source and author. Using either quotation marks or reference alone is not sufficient. Both must be used!
4. Adapting an author's ideas or theme and using it as your own without referencing the original source.
5. Seeking assistance from a friend or family member in respect to work you claim as your own.

Ignorance of the rules against plagiarism is not a defense; students are presumed to know what plagiarism is and how to avoid it. Students are especially reminded that material taken from the web must be quoted and cited in the same manner as if it came from a book or printed article.

If you are not sure whether you have committed plagiarism, it is better to ask a faculty member or teaching assistant than risk discovery and be forced to accept an academic penalty.

Plagiarism is cheating. It is considered a serious offence against intellectual honesty and intellectual property. Penalties can be severe, ranging from a mark of "0" for the assignment or test in question, up to and including expulsion from the university.

Accessibility:

Students with diverse learning styles and needs are welcome in this course. In particular, if you have a disability/health consideration that may require accommodations, please feel free to approach me and/or the AccessAbility Resource Centre as soon as possible.

AccessAbility staff (located in Rm 2047, South Building) are available by appointment to assess specific needs, provide referrals and arrange appropriate accommodations. Please call 905-569-4699 or email access.utm@utoronto.ca. The sooner you let us know your needs the quicker we can assist you in achieving your learning goals in this course.

Notice of Collection:

The University of Toronto respects your privacy. The information on medical certificates is collected pursuant to section 2(14) of the University of Toronto Act, 1971. It is collected for the purpose of administering accommodations for academic purposes based on medical grounds. The department will maintain a record of all medical certificates received. At all times it will be protected in accordance with the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act.

If you have questions, please refer to www.utoronto.ca/privacy or contact the University's Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Office at 416-946-5835. Address: Room 201, McMurrich Bldg., 12 Queen's Park Crescent, Toronto, ON, M5S 1A1.

Missed Term Work:

Late assignments will be subject to a late penalty of 5% per day (including weekends) of the total marks for the assignment. Assignments submitted five calendar days beyond the due date will be assigned a grade of zero. Assignments handed in AFTER the work has been returned to the class cannot be marked for credit. Accommodations due to late registration into the course will NOT be approved.

Missed Tests: there are no term tests in this courseUSE OF TURNITIN IN THIS COURSE

Students in this course will be expected to submit their book review and essay to Turnitin:

“Normally, students will be required to submit their course essays to Turnitin.com for a review of textual similarity and detection of possible plagiarism. In doing so, students will allow their essays to be included as source documents in the Turnitin.com reference database, where they will be used solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism. The terms that apply to the University's use of the Turnitin.com service are described on the Turnitin.com web site.”

A student who objects to submitting work to turnitin.com will be required to make special arrangements with the Professor. These may include, but will not necessarily be limited to, the following:

1. Submission of an annotated bibliography of all works used in preparing the paper;
2. Submission of all rough work involved in preparing the paper;
3. Submission of the call numbers or web site addresses of all sources cited in their paper.

The website is (www.turnitin.com). Click on “New Users” and follow the instructions.

At the same time as you submit your essay electronically to Turnitin, you must submit the traditional paper copy by hand and personally to your instructor.

The Turnitin software scans student essays against a database which includes public websites, paper-writing services, other essays submitted to Turnitin, and academic journal articles. The service produces a report on the originality of the essay. The instructor then reviews the reports (as well as your essay).

Assignments are not accessible to the general public once submitted to Turnitin. The student retains copyright ownership of his or her original work. Your essay is automatically added to Turnitin's archive for comparison against subsequently submitted material, thus ensuring that your work is not plagiarized. Should a match be found between assignments subsequently submitted in other courses and your essays for this course, Turnitin will inform the instructor that a match has been found with an archived document, and provide contact information for your instructor in this course. Your material will not be released to other Turnitin subscribers even if such a match is found.

You are strongly advised to save all of your research, notes and draft essays from this course in case a question of originality arises concerning your work.

Turnitin is in increasing use in North American universities as protection for students and instructors against academic fraud. It is a useful tool for protecting the integrity of your original work as well as your UTM degree.

The “Class Name” on Turnitin is: POL 478 (or POL 2019)

Class ID: 21894292 (21894337 for 2019)

Class enrollment key: livewell

ACADEMIC OFFENCES

The University of Toronto's Code of Academic Behaviour specifies the following offences in Section B.i.

1. It shall be an offence for a student knowingly:

- (a) to forge or in any other way alter or falsify any document or evidence required by the University, or to utter, circulate or make use of any such forged, altered or falsified document, whether the record be in print or electronic form;
- (b) to use or possess an unauthorized aid or aids or obtain unauthorized assistance in any academic examination or term test or in connection with any other form of academic work;
- (c) to personate another person, or to have another person personate, at any academic examination or term test or in connection with any other form of academic work;
- (d) to represent as one's own any idea or expression of an idea or work of another in any academic examination or term test or in connection with any other form of academic work, i.e. to commit plagiarism (for a more detailed account of plagiarism, see Appendix "A") ;
- (e) to submit, without the knowledge and approval of the instructor to whom it is submitted, any academic work for which credit has previously been obtained or is being sought in another course or program of study in the University or elsewhere;
- (f) to submit any academic work containing a purported statement of fact or reference to a source which has been concocted.

A NOTE CONCERNING CITATIONS AND SOURCE MATERIAL

Why Proper Citations are Necessary

Many students mistakenly believe that the sole purpose of proper citations and referencing is to safeguard against suspicion of academic dishonesty. In fact, a reader may wish simply to learn more about the issue in question, and citations make that possible. Students should understand that:

1. Academic inquiry is an ongoing 'conversation' within a scholarly community. Proper references are the 'record' of that conversation.
2. The advance of knowledge presupposes such a record. Proper references enable scholars to do research that builds upon, complements, or challenges views reached by other members of the community.
3. A reference or a citation is therefore a claim that the author has read the material, understood it, and proposes either to build upon it or to contest its validity. An author who offers a citation or a reference is therefore claiming familiarity with the material cited or referenced.

When Citations and References are Required

While references always involve judgments, there are commonly accepted reasons to cite source material:

1. To indicate the source of every direct quotation;
2. To indicate the source of material that is being paraphrased or summarized;
3. To acknowledge indebtedness to other authors for opinions, data and ideas that are not generally regarded as common knowledge;
4. To lend authority to a claim that the reader may reasonably be expected to question;
5. To support a statement for which there is either a single authority or about which there are conflicting perspectives;
6. To inform the reader of where to find alternative perspectives, corroborative authorities, or more extensive discussion of the topic.

Basic Features of the Chicago System of In-text Citations and References

The in-text system of author-date references that UTM POL uses by default comes from the 16th edition of the Chicago Manual of Style, which is available through the UTM Library website:

[<https://guides.library.utoronto.ca/c.php?g=251103&p=1741147>].

Students should consult chapter 15, the basic features of which are summarized in a ‘Quick Guide’:
[https://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/tools_citationguide.html] (last accessed August 16, 2018).

The ‘Quick Guide’ offers examples both of parenthetical citations and of the corresponding entries that occur in a reference list at the end of the essay. To provide additional commentary or information that would otherwise disrupt the main text of the essay, footnotes are used in the traditional manner. The reference list is arranged in alphabetical order by authors’ surnames. If there is more than one title by the same author, they are arranged in chronological order. Extensive details concerning more complex issues are available in Chapter 15 of the Manual.
