Course Description & Purpose:

This course will introduce students to some of the most important texts in the Western tradition of political thought, including Plato’s Republic, Aristotle’s Politics, Machiavelli’s Prince, Hobbes’s Leviathan, and Locke’s Second Treatise. Through a careful reading of these foundational texts in the history of political thought, we will explore major themes of both ancient and modern political thought, such as justice, politics, democracy, power, liberty, war, peace, gender, obedience, sovereignty, state, society, and so on. By the end of the course, students should be able to articulate an elaborate account of the key concepts theorized by these political theorists, acquire new knowledge of the historical and intellectual context of the period covered, and develop and improve their reflective, argumentative, and writing skills.

Required Readings:

The reading list for this course constitutes one of the major parts of the work for this course. Students are expected to keep up with the readings. Although there is a list of required books for this course, we will not read all of them in their entirety, but selected chapters or books (e.g., Machiavelli’s Discourses). The five books listed below can be purchased at the University of Toronto Bookstore and some will be made available online through Quercus and the U of T library. Please consult Quercus to see which of those texts will be made available electronically. Still, I generally recommend that students read these works in book format as it offers greater benefits for learning and allows you to easily highlight passages and move back and forth within the text.

It is strongly recommended that you consult the editions listed above; otherwise, you will run into differences in translation which could lead to certain confusion in class and group discussion.

Further details on each assignment are noted below and will be discussed further in class/tutorials:

Essays:

You will be required to write one short essay (2500 words) on Plato or Aristotle (essay questions and guidelines will be posted on Quercus) and one longer comparative essay (3500 words that should be submitted on the due date). Students will be given a choice of topics for each essay. The topics and details of each essay assignment will be posted on Quercus. No outside sources or complementary readings allowed. The purpose of the essays is to demonstrate that you have read the texts carefully, that you master the interpretive and analytical tools seen in class and that you are able to develop a nuanced and rigorous interpretation of the books.

Final Exam/Take-Home Exam (40%):

A comprehensive final exam/take-home exam is scheduled during the exam period and will cover all lectures and mandatory readings (Exam Period: TBD).

Attendance & Participation (10%):

Attendance and participation in class and in the tutorials are essential elements of this course. Through group discussions, the students will have the opportunity to ask questions about the readings, to further deepen their understanding of the texts and to critically engage with the arguments presented by the thinkers covered in the course. To get the full 10 points, students will be required to attend class and tutorials regularly, demonstrate that they have done the mandatory readings, prepare questions and contribute actively, positively and respectfully to the discussion with their classmates. Attendance in class and in the tutorials will be taken regularly.

Guidelines for Essays:

- Be sure to keep an extra hard copy of your papers in case the paper you submit is lost.
- Place a word count at the top of each paper just under your name. Penalties (2 points for each 100 words or fraction thereof) will be attached to papers that run over the prescribed word limit.
- Late papers will be penalized 2 points per day of lateness.
- No extensions, etc. without a certificate from your physician.
- You should familiarize yourself with the university’s policy on plagiarism. Plagiarism is a serious academic offense and will be dealt with accordingly. For further clarification and information, please see the University of Toronto’s policy on plagiarism at http://www.utoronto.ca/writing/plagsep.html. You must write your papers specifically for this class; you should not borrow material from another class; and you should not use another person’s words or ideas without attribution, whether those words or ideas come from conversations, the internet, or printed materials. If you are in doubt about whether you are committing plagiarism, feel free to ask me or a discussion leader; but a good rule of thumb is that if you are wondering about this, you should cite a source.
- Students are strongly advised to keep rough and draft work and hard copies of their essays and assignments before them in. These should be kept until the marked assignments have been returned.
- Normally, students will be required to submit their course essays to Turnitin.com for a review of textual similarity and detection of possible plagiarism. In doing so, students will allow their essays to be included as source documents in the Turnitin.com reference database, where they will be used solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism. The terms that apply to the University's use of the Turnitin.com service are described on the Turnitin.com web site.”

Writing Resources on Campus:

Students can find information about college writing centres at http://www.writing.utoronto.ca/writing-centres/arts-and-science. The home page for the website "Writing at the University of Toronto" is www.writing.utoronto.ca.

- More than 60 Advice files on all aspects of academic writing are available at www.writing.utoronto.ca/advice. A complete list of printable PDF versions are listed at http://www.writing.utoronto.ca/about-this-site/pdf-links-for-students.
- You may in particular want to consult the file "How Not to Plagiarize" and other advice on documentation format and methods of integrating sources; these are listed in the section at www.writing.utoronto.ca/advice/using-sources.
- The Writing Centre also hold regular workshops which may be of interest to you. More information on these workshops is available at http://www.writing.utoronto.ca/writing-plus.
- Information about the English Language Learning program (ELL) is available at http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/advising/ell. I particularly recommend the Communication Cafe meeting weekly at four different times and locations for the first five weeks of each term for practice with oral skills like class discussion and presentations. In addition, you may wish to take advantage of an online program called Reading eWriting that helps students engage course readings more effectively. You can also find further instructional advice files for students and classroom instruction on this site. For more information, you can contact the ELL Coordinator Leora Freedman at leora.freedman@utoronto.ca

Appeals:

All appeals of graded assignments must be initiated no later than two weeks after their return. A written note (max. 1 p.), briefly but specifically explaining the grounds for appeal, must be submitted to the grader of the assignment. A grade appeal may result in the grade being raised, lowered, or left as is, depending on the results of the review. After two weeks, grade complaints will not be considered unless there are mitigating circumstances like a serious illness.

Accessibility:

Students with diverse learning styles and needs are welcome in this course. In particular, if you have a disability/health consideration that may require accommodations, please feel free to approach me and/or the Access Ability Resource Centre as soon as possible. The sooner you let us know your needs the quicker we can assist you in achieving your learning goals in this course.

Notice of Collection

The University of Toronto respects your privacy. The information on medical certificates is collected pursuant to section 2(14) of the University of Toronto Act, 1971. It is collected for the purpose of administering accommodations for academic purposes based on medical grounds. The department will maintain a record of all medical certificates received. At all times it will be protected in accordance with the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act.

I. Equity Statement

The University of Toronto is committed to equity and respect for diversity. All members of the learning environment in this course should strive to create an atmosphere of mutual respect. As a course instructor, I will neither condone nor tolerate behaviour that undermines the dignity or self-esteem of any individual in this course and wish to be alerted to any attempt to create an intimidating or hostile environment. It is our collective responsibility to create a space that is inclusive and welcomes discussion. Discrimination, harassment and hate speech will not be tolerated.

Academic Rights

You, as a student, have the right to:

- Receive a syllabus by the first day of class.
- Rely upon a syllabus once a course is started. An instructor may only change marks’ assignments by following the University Assessment and Grading Practices Policy provision 1.3.
- Refuse to use turnitin.com (you must be offered an alternative form of submission).
- Have access to your instructor for consultation during a course or follow up with the department chair if the instructor is unavailable.
- Ask the person who marked your term work for a re-evaluation if you feel it was not fairly graded. You have up to one month from the date of return of the item to inquire about the mark. If you are not satisfied with a re-evaluation, you may appeal to the instructor in charge of the course if the instructor did not mark the work. If your work is remarked, you must accept the resulting mark. You may only appeal a mark beyond the instructor if the term work was worth at least 20% of the course mark.
- Receive at least one significant mark (15% for H courses, 25% for Y courses) before the last day you can drop a course for H courses, and the last day of classes in the first week of January for Y courses taught in the Fall/Winter terms.
  - Submit handwritten essays so long as they are neatly written.
  - Have no assignment worth 100% of your final grade.
  - Not have a term test worth 25% or more in the last two weeks of class.
- Retain intellectual property rights to your research.
- Receive all your assignments once graded.
- View your final exams. To see a final exam, you must submit an online Exam Reproduction Request within 6 months of the exam. There is a small non-refundable fee.
- Privacy of your final grades.

- Arrange for representation from Downtown Legal Services (DLS), a representative from the UTM Students’ Union (UTMSU), and/or other forms of support if you are charged with an academic offence.
