Course Description
This course introduces students to Canadian Government and Politics through the lens of political power and liberal democracy. The course is conducted in two parts. Part (1) Houses of Political Power: Foundations and Institutions examines constraints on political power (constitutions), the centralization of power (executives and legislatures), levels of power (federalism) and sources of power (elections). Part (2) Society & Political Systems examines the relationship between people and the state. Classical and contemporary issues are analyzed alongside the overarching theme of power and democracy, including topics such as Indigenous peoples, regionalism, ideology, representation, multiculturalism, and Canada’s place in the world. Together in two parts, students will leave this course with a comprehensive understanding of the unequal distribution of power across Canada’s key institutions and across civil society.

Course Delivery
This course will be conducted entirely online. There will be no in-person components to this course and all lectures and assignments, including tutorials, will be conducted online.

Classes will be synchronous on Zoom. Synchronous lectures are delivered during class time, and tutorials will take place once a week. Tutorials will begin during the second week of class. Each tutorial will focus on a debate resolution about a specific course reading or topic. A detailed schedule for tutorial weeks and topics will be posted to Quercus.

Prerequisites
Prerequisites are strictly checked and enforced and must be completed before taking a course. By taking this course you acknowledge that you will be removed from the course at any time if you do not meet all requirements set by the Department of Political Science. Further information can be found in the 2023-2024 Course Calendar which is available from the Office of the Registrar.

Tutorials

Tutorials begin on the second week of class. Students must attend the tutorial in which they are registered as reflected on ACORN and will not be able to switch between tutorial groups. Tutorials will adopt a deliberative-pedagogical approach centered around student participation in debates about issues in Canadian politics. Students will be assessed upon attending and contributing to the debates. A complete tutorial schedule and guide can be found on Quercus.
Policies and Resources

Writing Support and Writing-Integrated-Teaching (WIT)

In addition to political science specific Writing-Integrated-Teaching (WIT) resources that will be posted to Quercus, the University of Toronto has many writing centers that will be operating during the 2023 Summer session, and all will be offering synchronous one-on-one instruction (in-person and online) with asynchronous options at some colleges. Students should visit each individual center’s site for information on how to make an appointment.

The FAS centres are listed at: https://writing.utoronto.ca/writing-centres/arts-and-science/

Grade Appeals:

Students that request to appeal a grade must provide a written (250-word) document first to the original grader then, if an additional appeal is requested, to the course instructor. Grade appeals should be sent to the original grader after 24 hours and within two weeks of receiving the original grade. The original grade may stay the same, increase, or decrease upon additional review and the student must accept the resulting new grade. Initiating the grade appeal process means that the student accepts this condition.

Accessibility

Students with diverse learning styles and needs are welcome in this course. In particular, if you have a disability/health consideration that may require accommodations, please feel free to approach me and/or the AccessAbility Resource Centre as soon as possible. If you require accommodations or a disability, or have any accessibility concerns about the course, the classroom or course materials, please contact Accessibility Services at 416-978-8060 or accessibility.services@utoronto.ca Appointments and drop-in sessions for accessibility advisors and learning strategists are available.

Statement on the use of Ouriginal in Quercus.

Normally, students will be required to submit their course essays to the University’s plagiarism detection tool for a review of textual similarity and detection of possible plagiarism. In doing so, students will allow their essays to be included as source documents in the tool’s reference database, where they will be used solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism. The terms that apply to the University’s use of this tool are described on the Centre for Teaching Support & Innovation web site (https://uoft.me/pdt-faq).
A WARNING ABOUT PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an academic offence with a severe penalty.

The use of generative artificial intelligence tools or apps for assignments in this course, including tools like ChatGPT and other AI writing or coding assistants, is prohibited. The knowing use of generative artificial intelligence tools, including ChatGPT and other AI writing and coding assistants, for the completion of, or to support the completion of, an examination, term test, assignment, or any other form of academic assessment, may be considered an academic offense in this course. Representing as one’s own an idea, or expression, of an idea, that was AI-generated by be considered an academic offence.

It is essential that you understand what plagiarism is and that you do not commit it. In essence, it is the theft of the thoughts or words of others, without giving proper credit. You must put others’ words in quotation marks and cite your source(s). You must give citations when using others’ ideas, even if those ideas are paraphrased in your own words. Plagiarism is unacceptable in a university. What the university calls “plagiarism”, non-university institutions might call “fraud”.

It is essential that you understand what plagiarism is and that you do not commit it. In essence, it is the theft of the thoughts or words of others, without giving proper credit. You must put others’ words in quotation marks and cite your source(s). You must give citations when using others’ ideas, even if those ideas are paraphrased in your own words. Plagiarism is unacceptable in a university. What the university calls “plagiarism”, non-university institutions might call “fraud”.

The University of Toronto provides a process that faculty members must initiate when they suspect a case of plagiarism. In the Department of Political Science, suspected evidence of plagiarism must be reported to the Chair; in most cases, the Chair passes the case on to the Dean.

A faculty member may not mark an assignment or assess a penalty if he or she finds evidence of plagiarism – the matter must be reported. Penalties are assigned by the Chair, by the Dean or by the University of Toronto Tribunal.

The following are some examples of plagiarism:

1. Submitting as your own an assignment written by someone else.
2. Quoting an author without indicating the source of the words.
3. Using words, sentences, or paragraphs written by someone else and failing to place quotation marks around the material and reference the source and author. Using either quotation marks or reference alone is not sufficient. Both must be used!
4. Adapting an author’s ideas or theme and using it as your own without referencing the original source.
5. Seeking assistance from a friend or family member in respect to work you claim as your own.

Ignorance of the rules against plagiarism is not a defence; students are presumed to know what plagiarism is and how to avoid it.
Students are especially reminded that material taken from the web must be quoted and cited in the same manner as if it came from a book or printed article.

If you are not sure whether you have committed plagiarism, it is better to ask a faculty member or teaching assistant than risk discovery and be forced to accept an academic penalty.

Plagiarism is cheating. It is considered a serious offence against intellectual honesty and intellectual property. Penalties can be severe, ranging from a mark of “0” for the assignment or test in question, up to and including expulsion from the university.
