Course Description & Purpose:

This course will examine some of the most important, canonical texts in the tradition of political theory, including Plato’s Republic, Aristotle’s Politics, Machiavelli’s Prince, Hobbes’s Leviathan, and Locke’s Second Treatise. Through a careful reading of these foundational texts, we will explore major themes of both ancient and modern political thought, such as justice, politics, democracy, citizenship, power, liberty, violence, war, peace, gender, obedience, sovereignty, state, society, etc. By the end of the course, students should be able to articulate an elaborate account of the key concepts theorized by these thinkers, acquire new knowledge of the historical and intellectual context of the period covered, and develop and improve their reflective, argumentative, and writing skills.

Required Readings:

The reading list constitutes one of the major parts of the work for this course. Students are expected to keep up with the readings. Although there is a list of required books for this course, we will not read all of them in their entirety. It is strongly recommended that you buy/consult the editions listed below -- otherwise, we will run into differences in translation (which could lead to certain confusion) in class and group discussion. Note: The books are available at the university textbook store in the Koffler Student Centre.

- Plato, Republic. Trans. C.D.C. Reeve. Indianapolis, IN: Hackett, 1992.
- Aristotle, Politics. Trans. C.D.C. Reeve. Indianapolis, IN: Hackett, 1998.
- Machiavelli, Selected Political Writings. Trans. David Wootton. Indianapolis, IN: Hackett, 1994.
- Hobbes, Leviathan. Ed. Edwin Curley. Indianapolis, IN: Hackett, 1994.
- Locke, The Political Writings. Ed. David Wootton. Indianapolis, IN: Hackett, 2003.

Course Requirements (further details on each assignment are noted below and will be discussed further in class):

Assignment	% of the grade	Max. Length in words	Deadline
First Term Essay	20%	2500	3 December 2022 , at 5 p.m., to Quercus
Second Term Essay	40%	3500	7 March 2022 , at 5 p.m., to Quercus
Exam	30%	N/A	TBA
Attendance and participation	10%	N/A	N/A

Essays:

You will be required to write one short essay (2500 words) on Plato or Aristotle and one longer comparative essay (3500 words) that should be submitted on the due date. Students will be given a choice of topics for each essay; the topics and details of each essay assignment will be posted on Quercus. The papers will be assessed on how well you make your own case using the course text. Use of outside sources is strongly discouraged. However, if you do make use of such sources, they must be cited. The purpose of the essays is to demonstrate that you have read the texts carefully, that you have mastered the interpretive and analytical tools, and that you are able to develop a nuanced and rigorous interpretation of the books.

Attendance & Participation:

Attendance and participation are essential components of this course. Tutorial grade will depend upon attendance and participation. A full participation grade will be earned by students who have completed readings before tutorial and come prepared with their notes, the course text, and questions of their own. Students will be expected to engage respectfully with their peers and tutorial leader.

Final Exam:

A final examination during the examination period, 30% of the final mark. The exam will be administered online if necessary.

Late Penalties and Accommodation:

Late assignments will be penalized at a rate of 2% per day. For your sake and ours, please plan to submit your work on time. If you find yourself needing an extension, please reach out to your TA. We ask that you include (a) the reason for your request, and (b) a proposal for a new deadline. If you have additional documentation (like a doctor's note), please include that, too. Note: The University of Toronto respects your privacy. The information on medical certificates is collected pursuant to section 2(14) of the University of Toronto Act, 1971. It is collected for the purpose of administering accommodations for academic purposes based on medical grounds. At all times it will be protected in accordance with the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act.

Accessibility:

Students with diverse learning styles and needs are welcome in this course. In particular, if you have a health consideration that may require accommodation, please feel free to speak with me and/or the Accessibility Resource Centre as soon as possible. The sooner you let us know your needs the quicker we can assist you in achieving your learning goals in this course. Note:

Appeals:

All appeals of graded assignments must be initiated no later than two weeks after their return. A written note (max. 1 p.), briefly but specifically explaining the grounds for appeal, must be submitted to the grader of the assignment. A grade appeal may result in the grade being raised, lowered, or left as is, depending on the results of the review. After two weeks, grade complaints will not be considered unless there are mitigating circumstances like a serious illness.

Turnitin Policy:

Essays should be submitted online through Quercus and will automatically be reviewed using Turnitin.com. However, the use of Turnitin.com is voluntary, and students who do not consent to the use of Turnitin.com may choose to submit their essays directly to the instructor at armend.mazreku@mail.utoronto.ca. In cases where students choose not to use Turnitin.com, they will be required to submit all rough work, drafts, and notes at time of submission.

Official U of T statement on Turnitin.com: “Normally, students will be required to submit their course essays to Turnitin.com for review of textual similarity and detection of possible plagiarism. In doing so, students will allow their essays to be included as source documents in the Turnitin.com reference database, where they will be used solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism. The terms that apply to the University’s use of the Turnitin.com service are described on the Turnitin.com web site.”

Note on Plagiarism:

You should familiarize yourself with the university’s policy on plagiarism. Plagiarism is a serious academic offense and will be dealt with accordingly. You must write your papers specifically for this class; you should not borrow material from another class; and you should not use another person’s words or ideas without attribution, whether those words or ideas come from conversations, the internet, or printed materials. If you are in doubt about whether you are committing plagiarism, feel free to ask me or a discussion leader; but a good rule of thumb is that if you are wondering about this, you should cite a source. For further clarification and information, please see the University of Toronto’s policy on plagiarism at <http://www.utoronto.ca/writing/plagsep.html>.
