POL 378: CITIES AND CITIZENS

Thursday 10:00am-12:00pm

Course Description

More than half the world's population now live in cities. This so-called 'urban age' raises profound questions about the nature of politics and democracy: about how we live together and about how we collectively build, manage, and govern our societies. This course responds to these crucial inquiries with a focus on the interaction of cities and citizens. It begins with a critical examination of classical theories and institutions of citizenship—grounded in the modern nation state—exploring their relevance for our contemporary global urban society. This is followed by a survey of contemporary practices of civic engagement and city building, both formal and informal. Thematic topics include local government reform, DIY urbanism, radical municipalism, urban social movements, sanctuary cities, smart cities, public space design, and ecological citizenship. Examples will be drawn from Toronto and from cities around the world.

Course Objectives

- To establish a solid understanding of substantive issues, key trends, and timely developments related urban citizenship
- To foreground the highly uneven and differentiated geographies of urban citizenship rights, responsibilities, and activities; and to trace how various hierarchical structures—such as race, class, gender, and colonialism—affect civic life
- To become familiar with key theoretical debates in the field of citizenship studies and to evaluate the strengths and weakness of various disciplinary approaches
- To engage with various kinds of city builders and urban commentators and thus to become better informed citizens
- To improve academic skills of critical analysis, interpretation, argumentation, research, and communication

Requirements

Participation

Participation will comprise a large part of our class engagement. Students are expected to attend class each week and to take part in lecture and in-class activities. The participation grade will be determined based on: ongoing in-class participation (10%) and weekly contributions to the online Quercus discussion board (30%).

Following Thursday's class each week, I will post a prompt in the Quercus discussion board on the week's themes. Each student will make a meaningful contribution to discussion (approximately 200 words each) consisting of an original response to the discussion prompt, or a thoughtful reply to a peer's comment. You must make at least one contribution for 10 out of 12 weeks (i.e. you can opt out of 2 weekly discussions without penalty). Discussion contributions must be submitted by the following Wednesday at 11:59pm.

Our classrooms (physical and virtual) will be safe academic environments where ideas are devised, debated, and deconstructed. A university is an important place to debate difficult issues—and in doing so, to challenge others, to appreciate unfamiliar viewpoints, and to reflect upon and deepen one’s own convictions. All students are encouraged to exchange ideas openly in a rigorous and respectful manner. Please be generous with yourself and your peers.

Texts

The course texts (i.e. readings, podcasts, videos) are the foundation of the course. Students should complete all the required readings and content before class and should be prepared to discuss and analyze the major issues raised in the material. Students are expected to engage texts closely and with a critical eye.

Assignments

In addition to ongoing participation in course discussions, there are two major assignments in the course. The first assignment is a short essay examining the promise and limits of conventional citizenship regimes (due February 17). The second assignment is a reflection on a public engagement activity (due April 7). Assignment details will be posted on Quercus.

Evaluation

The grade for the class will be determined as follows:

In-class participation	10%
Online discussion participation	30%
Debating citizenship essay	30%
Public engagement assignment	30%

Academic Policy

Academic Integrity

Academic integrity is fundamental to learning and achieving course goals. The assignments in this course are designed to give you an opportunity to learn important skills and concepts by making honest attempts through your own thinking, writing, and hard work. Academic dishonesty in any form will thus not be tolerated.

For a complete list of offences, see section B of the Code of Behaviour on Academic Matters (<http://www.governingcouncil.utoronto.ca/policies/behaveac.htm>). If you have any questions about what is or is not permitted in this course, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Deadlines

All deadlines are firm. Any assignments received after the due date will be penalized 5% per day or part thereof. However, if you have extenuating circumstances that are affecting your ability to meet deadlines—including situations related to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic—please speak with me as soon as possible. Reasonable extension requests will be granted for assignments provided you have a revised plan and timeline for completion.

Contested Grades

The TA and I take very seriously the responsibility of grading and commenting on your work. I am happy to discuss evaluation criteria and strategies for improvement at any time. If you judge a received grade to be inaccurate (with respect to the grading guidelines given by the Faculty of Arts & Sciences and the assignment prompt) and would like your assignment to be re-graded, you should submit to me and the TA a detailed written account of why you think the grade is inaccurate, along with the original graded assignment, within one week of the first day papers are returned to students. Please note that re-reading a paper for the purposes of reconsidering the grade implies your acceptance that the grade could also drop based on further evaluation.

Office Hours

Office hours may be held online using Zoom, or in person if it is safe to do so. Please schedule a time to meet by emailing me in advance.

Email Policy

Please use your U of T email for course related correspondence. Be sure to include a meaningful subject line that includes the course code. I will try to respond to email within 1-2 working days. I do not typically reply to emails within 24 hours of an assignment due date.

Other Resources

Accessibility

Students with diverse learning styles and needs are welcome in this course. In particular, if you have a disability or health consideration that may require accommodations, please approach the Accessibility Services Office <http://studentlife.utoronto.ca/accessibility> as soon as possible. The Accessibility Services staff are available by appointment to assess specific needs, provide referrals and arrange appropriate accommodations. The sooner you let them and me know your needs, the quicker we can assist you in achieving your learning goals in this course. If there are any additional ways I can assist your learning in the course, please feel free to contact me directly.

Libraries

The U of T library system is an extraordinary resource for accessing information, conducting research and enhancing your learning. You should make every effort to take advantage of the various library services available to students. I especially encourage students to consult with librarians for assistance on research projects. In addition, the following guides on Essay Research: https://guides.library.utoronto.ca/CIRHR_IntroductionToResearch and How to Cite: <http://guides.library.utoronto.ca/citing> will be helpful for this class.

Writing

The University of Toronto offers an extensive collection of resources and tools to aid students in academic writing. I strongly suggest that you familiarize yourself with the workshops, tutoring services, and advice guides provided at <http://www.writing.utoronto.ca>. Information about the English Language Learning program (ELL) is available at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/advising/ell>.

Health and Wellness

Health & Wellness offers University of Toronto students a wide range of medical and mental health services to help support you in achieving your personal and academic best. These supports are especially important right now, when you may be experiencing a variety of negative effects of the COVID-19 pandemic. To find out more and to access supports, please visit <https://studentlife.utoronto.ca/department/health-wellness>. If you are feeling distressed, see particular supports (including those for mental health) at <https://studentlife.utoronto.ca/task/support-when-you-feel-distressed/>

College Registrar

Your college registrar is available for both general academic advising and personal problem solving. Your college is responsible for holistic advising that takes into account all the elements of student life: academic, personal, financial, and more. If you are facing challenges or have questions about how to succeed at the University of Toronto, this office should be your first point of contact.

Course Materials

Readings will be made available through the course Quercus site, or through the U of T library system.
