UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO
DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE
FALL 2022

POL 361 F1 G   GLOBAL POLITICAL ECONOMY I: HISTORY AND THEORY

Lecture: Tuesday, 10AM-12noon
Venue: McLennan Physical Laboratories, 255 Huron Street, Room 134
Instructor: Louis Pauly
Office hours: Normally on Wednesday, 2-4:30PM, Sidney Smith 3060.
TA: William O'Connell

Themes: This course focuses on the evolution of key aspects of world economic governance, including institutions and policy practices in such arenas as trade, money, finance, investment, migration, energy, climate, health, and development. Historical and theoretical frameworks for understanding continuity and change in efforts to address problems requiring collective action on a global scale are introduced. Student course work will concentrate on specific problems being addressed or needing soon to be addressed at the system level.

EXCLUSION: POL370H1; POL370Y1
PREREQUISITE: 1.0 POL credit; ECO100Y1 or ECO105Y1
RECOMMENDED PREPARATION: POL 208Y

Assignments, grading and dates:

First Quiz (5%); Essay Prospectus (5%, 250 words maximum); Second Quiz (10%); Essay Annotated Bibliography (20%; 700 words maximum); Third Quiz (10%); Completed Essay (40%; 2500 words); Fourth Quiz (10%).

The first hour of each weekly session will be devoted to a lecture based on assigned readings. The second hour will emphasize discussion and debate, occasionally with a guest speaker.

Course assignments and off-line general communications will be coordinated and managed on a dedicated Quercus site open to all registered students. Quizzes and essay assignments will be graded on a scale of 0-100 points and then weighted as specified above in the calculation of the final grade. The penalty for unexcused lateness in handing in written assignments will be 5 points for each late day.

Students are expected to attend all lectures and class discussions in person. Lectures and discussions will not be recorded. Power Point slides for each week will be left on-line until the end of the term. Students should take their own notes for future reference. If a class is missed because of illness, arrangements should be made with a classmate to share notes. Quizzes will be based on required readings and the content of lectures and discussions. Weekly attendance is therefore mandatory.
The instructor will hold office hours in person, with weekly sign-up sheets available on Quercus. He should be your first point of contact for advice and guidance. Outside of those hours, email contacts with the instructor or the TA should normally be limited to Wednesday afternoon.

The essay will focus on one particular aspect of the contemporary global economy that poses a collective action problem and governance challenge for existing political authorities. Each student will choose a specific problem as the focal point for her/his essay. The essay will describe the nature of that challenge, the historical development of the underlying policy problem, and the current condition of any governance arrangements aiming to tackle it. On this basis, it will specify the most useful theoretical approach to understand the core political dilemma facing policy-makers. It will then speculate on how that dilemma might be overcome or managed more effectively in the future. The prospectus will provide a one-page outline of the essay in its early planning phase. The annotated bibliography will generally comprise and briefly summarize 5-10 principal articles and/or books to be used as key reference sources for the final essay.

There will be four short, multiple-choice quizzes throughout the semester. These will be administered online through Quercus on the following Wednesdays: September 28, October 19, November 16, and December 7. Each quiz will be available for 24 hours (from 12AM to 11:59PM) on those dates only. You will have one hour to complete the quiz once you sign-on to the site, so choose a convenient time convenient within that 24-hour period. Do NOT open the quiz if you do not intend to complete it within one hour.

Academic Integrity: Academic integrity is fundamental to learning and scholarship at the University of Toronto. Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in this academic community ensures that the U of T degree that you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement, and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves. Familiarize yourself with the University of Toronto's Code of Behavior on Academic Matters. It is the rule book for academic behavior here, and you are expected to know the rules. Potential offences include, but are not limited to:

- In papers and assignments
  - a) Using someone else's ideas or words without appropriate acknowledgement.
  - b) Copying material word-for-word from a source (including lecture and study group notes) and not placing the words within quotation marks.
  - c) Submitting your own work in more than one course without the permission of the instructor.
  - d) Making up sources or facts.
  - e) Including references to sources that you did not use.
  - f) Obtaining or providing unauthorized assistance on any assignment, including working in groups or assignments that are supposed to be individual work, and having someone rewrite or add material to your work while editing it.
  - g) Lending your work to a classmate who submits it as his/her own.

- Misrepresentation:
  - a) Falsifying or altering any documentation required by the University, including doctor's notes.
b) Falsifying institutional documents or grades.

The University of Toronto treats cases of academic misconduct very seriously. All suspected cases of academic dishonesty will be investigated following the procedures outlined in the Code. The consequences for academic misconduct can be severe, including a failure in the course and a notation on your transcript. If you have any questions about what is or is not permitted in this course, please do not hesitate to contact the instructor. If you have questions about appropriate research and citation methods, seek out additional information from the instructor, or from other available campus resources like the U of T Writing Website. If you are experiencing personal challenges that are having an impact on your academic work, please speak to the instructor or seek the advice of your college registrar. (Normally, students will be required to submit their course essays to Turnitin.com for a review of textual similarity and detection of possible plagiarism. In doing so, students will allow their essays to be included as source documents in the Turnitin.com reference database, where they will be used solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism. The terms that apply to the University's use of the Turnitin.com service are described on the Turnitin.com website.)

Accessibility Services: Students with diverse learning styles and needs are welcome in this course.
