Topics in Comparative Politics III: Epidemics and Phobia
POL379H1 F; LEC0201

Instructor: Prof. Ato Kwamena Onoma
Office: 3079 Sydney Smith Hall
Email: ato.onoma@utoronto.ca

Class time: Wednesday 9-11am

Office Hours: By appointment

THEMES: This class will explore the relationship between epidemics and phobia with an emphasis on mapping and making sense of the forms that phobia takes during public health crises. We will also examine the extent to which epidemics constitute defining moments that inflect longstanding social dynamics. The following are some questions that we will explore: What is the relationship between health-related xenophobia and other forms of xenophobia? Do epidemics always coincide with xenophobia? Why are some groups scapegoated while others are not? Which members of scapegoated groups are targeted during epidemics? How do epidemics play into intra-group interactions? This course will help students to reflect on broader questions of mobility, identity and belonging while advancing their knowledge of the more specific issues of epidemics and phobia.

FORMAT AND REQUIREMENTS: This is a lecture with a significant discussion segment. This course will be in-person. The course will be divided into two sections. The first part of the course will help students grasp the dominant literature on xenophobia linked to public health crises. In the second section of the course, we will critically interrogate the dominant literature on the relationship between epidemics and xenophobia. We will detect its gaps and flaws and explore ways of further enrichening it.

PREREQUISITES: 1.0 credit in POL/ JPA/ JPF/ JPI/ JPR/ JPS/ JRA courses
