Course Description: This course examines key themes and issues in global politics such as interstate war, nationalism, nuclear weapons, and the evolution of the global order.

Lectures: All lectures will be posted on Mondays on Quercus.

Readings: All the required readings will be posted on Quercus. No other materials are necessary for the course. Completing the readings ahead of time will be key for understanding the lectures, writing the final exam, and participating in the tutorials.

Tutorial Instructors: The TA assigned to your tutorial is your first point of contact for any questions regarding course logistics, assignments, missing work, requests for re-grade, general concerns, and any other administrative matters. The head TA, Dafe Oputu (dafe.oputu@mail.utoronto.ca) will also be available to help with these questions if necessary.

Course Requirements: You will be evaluated on the basis of an IR meme assignment, a 3-page essay, your participation in tutorials, and a final (at-home) exam. The breakdown of the course grade is as follows:

IR Meme (due Sep 27)	10%
Short Essay (due Nov 15):	25%
Tutorials:	15%
Final Exam:	50%

Short Essay: A 4-page double-spaced essay on a prompt that will be provided to you later in the semester. It is due by midnight, Nov 15 (double-spaced, size 12 font, 1 inch margins).

Final Exam: the exam will be online. You will have 3 hours to write and return the essays once you receive the essay questions, and you can have access to all notes and course materials during the exam. More information about the final exam will be provided later in the semester.

IR Meme: make a meme based on any of the course materials (readings/lectures). This should be submitted to your TA by Sep 27, and it will be graded on a simple pass/fail basis (10 points if you turn one in, 0 points if you do not.)

Tutorials: Tutorials will meet during the first week, beginning after Session 2. There are no tutorials for Sessions 10-12. Your grade in tutorial is based on attendance (5%), participation (5%), and a 2-3-page reading response (5%, due at some point between Session 2 and Session 9 based on sign-up.)

Tutorial attendance: Your tutorial leader will discuss course themes and answer questions dealing with the readings and lectures. Tutorial attendance is therefore crucial to your success in this course. Each absence will decrease your attendance mark by 2.5%, so missing two or more tutorials will result in an attendance mark of zero. It will also negatively impact your participation mark (subject to the TA's discretion) and your ability to successfully answer questions on the final exam. So don't miss tutorials if you can help it!

Question of the week: submit a question to your TA with the title "Question of the Week" dealing with the content of the lectures. If your question is selected, I'll open the next lecture by talking about it, and you get 5% extra credit. (You can choose whether I say who asked the question or keep it anonymous.) This is optional. Only one extra credit per person.

Office Hours: You can sign up for my office hours via Calendly. Currently my office hours will be held Fridays 10-12, though that may be subject to change based on availability.

Accessibility Concerns: The University of Toronto is committed to accessibility. If you require accommodations or have any accessibility concerns, please visit <http://studentlife.utoronto.ca/accessibility>.

Grade Appeals: If you are unhappy with a grade on an assignment, you may submit a written appeal to your TA, explaining why you feel your grade on an assignment is unjustified. You must submit this written appeal no later than two weeks after your assignment is returned. Regrades do not mean an automatic increase, as assignments must be evaluated anew. Your grade may stay the same, go up, or go down.

If you are still unhappy after your TA's regrade, you may contact the Head TA to request an instructor regrade. These regrades will be granted only in cases where a regrade is deemed necessary by the Head TA or instructor, and may improve or lower your grade.
